Girl Scouts Enjoy Belated Christmas Party

The combined Junior Girl Scout Troops 322 and 336 held their belated Christmas party on January 8, 1974 at the Appomattox Intermediate School.

The party had been planned for December 18th but the Christmas vacation from school started early because of the snow and the party was postponed.

The girls exchanged gifts and had refreshments prepared by some of the parents.

The Pastor Speaks

Why Speak In Anger

When we speak, too often we do not think first. An unknown writer penned these words, "Loose your tongue in anger and you will make the greatest speech you will ever regret." The writer's name is lost, but his words of wisdom live on.

At a nursing station in Richwood, West Virginia's Sacred Heart Hospital hangs a sign - no doubt placed there by the "Sisters" on duty - "Be sure your mind is in gear before you engage your tongue." A little of today's venacular is used to give words of wisdom.

A plaque which reads "O Lord, help my words to be gracious and tender today, for tomorrow I may have to eat them," hangs by the door in my study. It is the last thing I see before I go to the pulpit to preach.

Paul writing to the members of God's church at Colosse wrote these words of warning.

Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt,
that ye know how ye ought to answer every man.
Colossians 4:6

The Sunday School Lesson

HERBERT C. BRADSHAW

Comment on the International Sunday School lesson for Sunday, January 20, 1974.

Topic: Love Among Believers.

Scripture: John 13: 1-20, 31-35.

By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another. John 13:35

In recent lessons presenting Jesus as giving the water of live, as being the bread of life, and as the light of the world, the student of the Gospel of John readily perceives the identification of Jesus in terms of essentials of life. This week's International Sunday School lesson puts emphasis on the demonstration by the believer of another essential of life, love.

Jesus Himself declared that love would be the distinguishing characteristic of believers: "By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another." There would be no need for the disciple to wear distinctive clothing, no need for him to be physically branded with some mark to identify him as a follower of Jesus, no need for him to carry on his person some distinguishing sign. All these would be superficial marks of identification.

The truly distinctive identification of the believer would be more deep-seated than some outward sign, for it would arise from within the individual and would be indicative of the quality of the person's life. We are reminded that Jesus once said that it is not what enters a person's mouth which defiles him, but the evidence of personal defilement is given in the evil words which come out of the mouth, for these reflect the state of the heart and the concerns of the mind. The good which is evident in a person's words and actions reveal the caliber of his character, for they too reflect the state of the heart and the interests of the mind.

Love is not a quality which can be worn as a coat, to be put on or taken off at will. Love indicates a quality of character, which has its roots and its springs in the state of heart of the individual. Love finds expression in service, as Jesus demonstrated when He washed the feet of the disciples. Washing the feet was a menial task, performed by a servant for members of the family and their guests when they came into the house after walking dusty or muddy streets or roads. Shod in open sandals, feet quickly became soiled and begrimed, and etiquette in Jesus' time prescribed the washing of feet when one came into a home, a practice similar to the prevalent practice today in Japan of removing one's shoes at the entrance of a home.

Washing His disciples' feet symbolized both Jesus' dedication to serve others, which had its source in His sublime love for all human beings, and His ideal of service for His disciples to follow, which also should spring from love which encompasses all humanity. Love is not an instinctive human characteristic, but it is one which must be implanted and cultivated. The basis of love for others is that Jesus loves them too; and because a person loves Jesus, he loves those whom Jesus loves.

Despite Jesus' injunction to His followers to love one another, some of the bitterest quarrels and bloodiest wars have taken place among those who bear the name Christian and call Jesus Christ Lord. Such unhappy developments take place when people, despite their profession, seek to impose their own wills and desires. In such situations, human nature prevails over the engrafted discipleship, and the desire to rule and dominate takes precedence over the commandment to love one another. Yet it is a strange quirk in people that their strongest loyalties may be demonstrated in such conflicts.

So strongly did Jesus feel about the importance of love that He gave His disciples what some call an eleventh commandment, "A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another." How important it is that Christians recognize the validity of this eleventh commandment! Love is an essential of life. The impact of love is noted in the natural world in its effect upon children. Child care specialists recognize its contribution to the flourishing of the child. So it is in the spiritual life: love is essential to growth, both from receiving it and from giving it.

ALABAMA BAPTIST

And Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple. St. Matthew 24:1 - verse.

Service was held at the Alabama Baptist Church - 1st Sunday in New Year 1974. Rev. Curtis Elliott pastor. The first service of the year was outstanding. A large crowd attended the morning service beginning at 11:45. Our pastor was at his best. Subject - Right Road For Another Year. Remarks were made by Mrs. Catherine Haskins, thanking each and everyone for coming out in the new year and made confessions to God. Confessions were spoken by Mrs. Bessie Watkins, everyone enjoyed. Request songs: by Deeon Jessie King for Mrs. Alice Moore lead, "He's Sweet I Know," and another one he wanted his wife to sing Mrs. Bertha King, "Have You Tried Jesus" with Mrs. Haskins at the piano, and the choir to help sing. Rev. Elliott sung a special song for Dec. King "It's My Desire." Special request Rev. Elliott wanted Sis Connie Venable to lead "I'm Already Been to Water. A spiritual service was held, and enjoyed by everyone. Lord I started in Jesus now I'm going thru. Main road of faith is a narrow road, it leads thru mountains and valleys, road in a dead end, turn a straight road, no signs. Wonder will you go in, and get on straight Special song with Dea. at the piano. This When I Rose.

There are some changes in Fire-cured tobacco seed for 1974 that will interest you.

Mr. Walker, Cumberland County, for years has produced tobacco seed. This past summer he passed away. Mrs. Walker is marketing their seed supply. I understand that this seed is not certified and will sell for $5.00 an ounce.

The Fire-Cured Tobacco Commission had some seed produced. I understand that this seed will be marketed by Coker Seed Company as certified seed and will sell for $6.00 an ounce. I don't believe that this seed has been distributed to dealers, but will be within a few weeks.
